ABSTRACT

This book contains the results of the 1987 statewide survey on public involvement in South Carolina's education system. It is designed to serve as a resource directory and provides information that interested persons can use to expand partnerships between schools and the public that they serve. Survey results are catalogued in this directory according to the six regional networks that correspond to the Regional Education Improvement Act Advisory Councils. A map for each region is followed by a chart listing the school districts with average daily membership, number of schools, and 1980 district population. Following these materials, names of resource persons, foundations, resource materials, and other pertinent information are listed by school district. The overall contact person for partnerships is named for each district as well as the specific individual(s) directly responsible for working with business, the community, or parents. For clarification, a copy of the survey has been included along with a composite chart of the survey results detailing the responses submitted by the districts. (YLB)

Introduction

The 1984 Education Improvement Act (EIA) encourages the creation of more effective partnerships among schools, parents, community, and business. The partnership concept is based on the premise that excellence in education depends upon increased involvement of the citizenry in order to build public confidence in the schools.

The aim of the EIA legislative provision on partnerships is to strengthen public education by making it a shared responsibility. The participation of enthusiastic partners from both the business and civic sectors has resulted in advantages to members of the community as well as to students and educators. As of fall 1987, every school district in the State could boast at least one innovative partnership involving the public which it serves!

A statewide survey on public involvement was taken in November 1984 to determine the number and type of public involvement programs in the school districts, the districts which have local school board policies for parent, business, and community involvement, and the districts which need assistance in initiating efforts in these areas. Follow-up surveys have been administered yearly in October. One hundred percent response from the school districts has been consistently received and recorded in a resource directory titled Public Involvement Programs.

The purpose of this book is to promulgate the results of the 1987 survey. The book is designed to serve as a resource directory. It contains information which interested persons can use to expand partnerships between schools and the public which they serve.

The results of the 1987 statewide survey are catalogued in this directory according to the six regional networks which correspond to the Regional EIA Advisory Councils. Names of resource persons, foundations, resource materials, and other pertinent information are listed by school district. The overall contact person for partnerships is named for each district as well as the specific individual(s) directly responsible for working with business, the community, or parents.

For clarification, a copy of the survey has been included on pages 6-10 along with a composite chart of the survey results on pages 12-13 detailing the responses submitted by the districts.

PLEASE MAIL COMPLETED SURVEY by October 16, 1987.

A stamped, addressed envelope is provided for your convenience.

S.C. Department of Education, 504 Rutledge Building, Columbia, SC 29201

Business/Education Partnerships Grow

- A total of 3,000 businesses were involved in business/education partnerships in 1987, an increase of almost 300% since 1984. Business leaders reported they found the partnership program rewarding and, of those surveyed, 90% planned to continue their participation.

GROWTH IN BUSINESS/EDUCATION PARTNERSHIPS

Region VI

■ Volunteers working in South Carolina schools increased by 46% between 1986 and 1987, to 115,000 volunteers.

- Fewer than half the teachers, public, and students agreed parents took responsibility for their children's behavior in school, while 59% of the parents felt they did.
- Twenty percent of the parents and public thought "parents know what goes on in schools these days." Twenty-seven percent of the teachers and 37% of the students agreed with this statement.
